Beatlemania set to invade Venice Community Center

In 1964, the Beatles appeared in America for the first time on the Ed Sullivan Show, changing the music world forever. The next British invasion, "Beatlemania Live," hits the stage at 7 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 23, at the Venice Community Center, 326 S. Nokomis Ave., Venice.

Authentic right down to the same model guitars, drums, costumes and even hairstyles, the Beatlemania Live tribute show captures all the energy and excitement of the original fab four with classics like "Yesterday," "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Band," "Magical Mystery Tour," "Penny Lane," "Let it Be," "Something," and many more. Performing with full orchestration, Beatlemania Live has played to audiences around the world to rave reviews.

Tickets for Beatlemania Live are on sale at the Venice Community Center box office or online at www.parksonline.scgov.net. Beatlemania Live is not sponsored, endorsed by, or affiliated in any way with Apple Corp. Ltd. or The Beatles.
